

I feel that my major revision regarding safety considerations when collecting data near an actively calving marine-terminating glacier was appropriately addressed, and I appreciate that the authors have also improved the readability of the manuscript.