

240 mode UWBM reflections, we expect different characteristics particularly for volume scattering making interface return power comparisons between these two modes ambiguous. Therefore, we only use high-altitude mode flights for the determination of interface return power.

