

The authors have addressed my comments thoroughly, and the manuscript has improved substantially. The revised structure is clearer, the distinction between Results and Discussion is now appropriate, and the clarification of drought definitions enhances conceptual consistency.

The added evaluation of drought detection and the expanded discussion—particularly the comparison with other modelling approaches—strengthen the manuscript. Specific technical comments have been handled satisfactorily.

I have no further major concerns.

Kind regards