

Dear Andreas,

We modified Fig. 4 by adding an additional dune front example from Viedma (apart the previous one from San Antonio) trying to take advantage of the full space of the caption. The dune fronts and the reference points are the same from ArcGIS, while the arrows displayed for dune measurement were added in Adobe Illustrator because the measurements were performed individually in the GIS, which does not allow all measurement lines to be displayed simultaneously in a single figure. In addition, we included a sentence in the methods section to clarify how these measurements were taken. We hope these revisions satisfactorily address the comments.

Kind regards,

Mauricio Toffani
